

Linc Hand

Born and raised in Birmingham, Alabama, Linc Hand grew up being cast in local and national commercials through his Mom's advertising agency since he was six years old.

After moving to Los Angeles, Linc began to explore his love of acting further by studying with legendary coach Howard Fine.

A life-long athlete, Linc's love of sports was nurtured by his father at a young age. Linc excelled at football, basketball, and martial arts, but it would be baseball that ultimately brought Linc's passions together. Linc's natural athleticism made him a perfect fit to play Fritz Ostermueller, one of Jackie Robinson's primary antagonists in the 2013 hit feature, 42.

Linc's television work has been seen on CBS, HBO, FX, and The CW. He was most recently seen on CBS's NCIS as Navy Petty Officer First Class Damien Hunter. He also joined ABC's Revenge as a recurring character during the show's final 2013/14 story arc.

Linc has been featured in numerous live comedy bits on ABC's Jimmy Kimmel Live, and he worked side by side with Stephen Merchant in late 2013 when he guest starred on HBO's Hello Ladies.

Linc's serious side was seen starring alongside Adrian Grenier, Ben McKenzie, and Kid Cudi in the 2014 feature, Goodbye World, which opened in limited release on April 5, 2014.

Linc is also heading up Hand 'N Hand Entertainment, a company focusing on developing film, music, and web oriented projects.

Most recently Linc appeared in the film "Imperium" with Daniel Radcliffe who portrays an undercover FBI agent.

Linc has appeared in over 43 films. He continues to be busy and has four films and TV Series episodes that have been completed or are in post-production. He is currently preparing for upcoming film roles and working on some additional projects.
